

JAPANESE HIGH COMMAND ADMITS THAT "SOME DAMAGE" IS CAUSED BY U. S. SUPERFORTRESS RAID ON NAGASAKI

Broadcasts Decision of Cabinet to Strengthen Defenses—Some Time Later Admit That Palembang is Hit—Japan's New Cabinet Jittery Over the Increasing Assaults on Home Islands.

By International News Service
Japan's Imperial High Command admitted today that "some damage" had been caused in the United States Superfortress bomber raid on the industrial city of Nagasaki and at the same time Nippon's bomb frightened new cabinet, jittery over the increasing assaults against home islands, decided to prepare a plan for "strengthening home defense."

The admission of damage inflicted by the huge American craft in the raid which hit the Nagasaki area about 1 a. m. Jap time was contained in an official communique reported by the Domei agency and recorded by the FCC.

Radio Tokyo broadcast the decision of the cabinet to strengthen defenses after studying reports on the B-29 raid, the FCC said.

Not until some time later did the Japs acknowledge that Palembang, on the island of Sumatra, had been hit by another wing of the U. S. 20th Air Force.

"Just one oil tank was set afire," Domei asserted.

No details were given in the first Tokyo announcement heard by Reuters.

Announcement of the new attack came less than 24 hours after big United States Superfortress bombers had blasted the vital industrial center of Nagasaki on Kyushu island.

Japan's bomb frightened new cabinet, jittery over the increasing American assaults on the Nipponese home islands, decided meanwhile to prepare a plan for "strengthening home defense."

Liberators Execute 3 Successive Night Assaults On "Japs"

"YANKS" NEAR PARIS

By International News Service
The Japanese cabinet, alarmed over the results of new American air blows against Japan's stolen empire, including an assault by B-29 Superfortresses on industrial Nagasaki in the Japanese homeland, moved nervously today to "strengthen home defense."

The cabinet's sudden decision came after B-29's not only struck a powerful blow at Nagasaki but also made a devastating strike at Palembang on the island of Sumatra, while B-24 Liberator bombers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command executed three successive night assaults on Davano in the Philippines, heralding the opening phase of MacArthur's triumphant return to Manila.

These powerful air assaults against the Japanese seemed to accentuate the new Pacific strategy mapped at the newly disclosed conference between President Roosevelt and his military leaders in the Pacific war zone at Honolulu.

Gen. MacArthur's communique announcing the beginning of the pre-invasion blockade of the Philippines also revealed that American troops in British New Guinea have crushed the last enemy resistance by trapped Japanese forces in the Drinimur River area, and another communique from Pearl Harbor revealed the end of enemy resistance on the reconquered island of Guam, completing the American investment of the Marianas group.

In France, American spearheads driving toward Paris were reported at Chartres, only 43 miles from the capital, as other American units in Brittany intensified their siege of the port and naval base at Brest.

An official spokesman at Allied headquarters said there was no confirmation as yet that the Yanks

ARMY PLANS DRASTIC CUT IN AIRPLANE PRODUCTION; TO RELEASE 20,000 AIRCRAFT WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—The Army's aircraft production program will be cut back in virtually all categories except Superfortresses and other very long range bombers, releasing for work in more urgent programs 20,000 aircraft workers within the next 30 days and 100,000 additional by the end of the year, it was announced today.

The shift of emphasis to heavier world-racing planes was regarded as evidence that the War Department is preparing for the day of Germany's defeat, when all its forces will be concentrated against Japan.

Production of Liberators and heavy cargo planes will be reduced and new emphasis will be placed upon the B-29 (Superfortress) and the coming B-32, which is even heavier.

Immediate effects of the program include:

1. The contract of Higgins Aircraft, Inc., New Orleans, for 50 C-46 cargo planes a month will be canceled. Some 6300 workers will be laid off gradually.

2. The Curtiss-Wright Corp., Buffalo, N. Y., will work toward a schedule of 150 C-46's a month, tapering off to 100 in mid-1945. No reduction in the 43,000 employees is expected until early 1945.

3. Instead of the previously planned 108-planes-a-month schedule for Curtiss-Wright Corp. at St. Louis and at Louisville, these plants will work toward a schedule of 50 planes monthly. Employment will remain unchanged through 1944 at St. Louis and additional workers will be needed at Louisville.

4. Production of Liberators at the North American plant at Dallas will be terminated. Southern California manufacturers will be required to place sub-contracts in the Dallas plant, thus making full use of the Dallas labor and releasing labor in California for other programs.

In addition, production of Liberators at the Ford plant at Willow Run and at Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., San Diego, will be reduced.

The War Department's cutback of aircraft production is the first major move in the direction of gearing the war production machine to

STABILITY OR MOBILITY

(Doylestown Intelligencer, August 11th)

Many people assume the Constitution to contain elements which the writers had no thought of including. They expect to find in it a series of fixed regulations by which a sharply defined form of government is established, and under which every public official, every branch of government and every individual ought to be able to tell exactly what he can or cannot do.

Because there are not always such definite boundaries, because contention over power and right occurs, because differences of opinion on such a fundamental question as States' Rights led to a Civil War, such people conclude that the Constitution is defective in one of its main purposes.

The Constitution is not a rule-book. Quite the contrary, it is a statement of principles looking to the establishment of a fluid, changing form of government, adaptable alike to foreseen and unexpected needs, but so constructed that each element in it is both supported and limited by the other elements.

The difference between mere orders, and principles of conduct, may be illustrated by the story of a parent who had left his children with an apparently exhaustive list of instructions about the things they must and must not do.

When he returned he was appalled to discover all his hopefuls up a maple tree, into the branches of which they had woven a tangle of clothesline.

At the family conference which followed, sober young faces were turned to him in wide-eyed innocence, and he was told reproachfully: "Why, Daddy, you never told us not to make a rope elevator in the maple tree."

The plea, be it said, was meekly accepted by the parent, on whom a light dawned. Thereafter the family rules ceased to be mere "do's" and "don't's," and became instead more generalized instructions covering such matters as the duty of the older to protect the younger, the obligation to respect property rights, and the need for avoiding all experiments—however attractive—which obviously risked life and limb.

The first code of rules was at the mercy both of ingenuity and of the unforeseeable. The second compilation was of more enduring stuff. The principles embodied in it were flexible even though unchanging; adaptable to the future as well as to the present.

Likewise the Constitution is dynamic, not static. It does not attempt to lay down a legal program immutable as the law of the Medes and the Persians, but a statement of American principles of government under which the answer to specific problems is left largely to the working out of the people themselves and of various officials and branches of government.

Most of the flat orders of the Constitution are prohibitions, and usually against specific acts. These "shall nots" in the main are direct protections to the rights of the people.

The powers of governing agencies and officials are

Germans Predict Allied Capture of Paris May Be Today

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force—German broadcasts frankly predicted Allied capture of Paris as a likely eventuality today while unconfirmed reports at Allied Headquarters placed American spearheads at Chartres, famous old Cathedral city on the fringe of the French capital's inner defense belt.

Although official spokesmen had no substantiation of reports the Americans had reached or taken Chartres, it was obvious the United States advance was still rolling in high gear, and at the same time the battle for Brest reached its climax.

The frankest admission that Paris is likely to fall, perhaps within an unexpectedly short time, came from Robert De Beauplan, commentator on the Nazi-controlled Paris radio.

"The war is getting nearer to Paris," he said. "The Allies are sweeping forward toward the capital and they may capture it. It cannot be denied that the fall of the city would be a tremendous event, but it would not mean that the war was over."

"Fighting would continue and every inch of ground would still be bitterly contested. For the Allies Paris presents merely strategical advances."

Chartres itself lies only 43 miles from Paris.

Discusses The Breeding And Raising of Horses

Dr. J. Fred Wagner spoke to his fellow members of the Rotary Club when they met at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon on the topic, "Raising and Breeding of Horses."

"This has always been a most interesting subject to me," Dr. Wagner said. "From my early life on a farm I have always been interested in horses and their training."

"Race track horses have pedigrees and are very highly trained. The breeding of these horses is a very important phase of their development. They are trained just as human athletes. When they are born they are given every care and training. The famous race horse 'Man-o-War' came from an ordinary horse but good training made this horse famous."

"When a race horse passes January 1st of the oncoming year he is called a 'yearling,'" Dr. Wagner said.

Following the talk, which was very thoroughly enjoyed by members, Dr. Wagner answered many questions for the group.

Announcement was made that the speaker for the meeting next week will be T. D. Slattery, vice-president and general manager of the Associated British and Irish Railways, Inc. Slattery has a wide reputation for his excellent talks.

WILL FAMILIARIZE PROPRIETORS WITH THE RATION RULES

Price Panel Invites Owners of Eating and Drinking Places to Meeting

AT BRISTOL TONIGHT

First Hand Information Will Be Available at That Time

The Price Panel of the local War Price and Rationing Board has mailed invitations to a trade meeting to the proprietors of all eating and drinking establishments in the ration area in the lower half of Bucks county, south of Doylestown. The meeting is to be held in the Bristol Municipal building at eight p. m. this evening.

This meeting is for the purpose of familiarizing those in the restaurant business with their new regulation which became effective August 1. Representatives from the local War Price and Rationing Board will attend so that first hand information will be available at the Board office for those proprietors unable to attend.

A section of the new regulation requires the ceiling prices on 40 basic items of food served in an establishment to be posted in a conspicuous place. Heretofore, the ceiling prices were kept on file, but did not have to be displayed. The Office of Price Administration and the District Restaurant Council hope, by this arrangement, to attain a greater degree of compliance on the part of the restaurant proprietors and to bring more forcefully to the attention of the public the fact that they should be aware of ceiling prices when they are patronizing their favorite eating place as well as when they are shopping in stores.

The Price Panel will check the prices posted in each establishment against those which have been on file in the board office for more than a year.

In recent checks which the panel members and their volunteers have made a high percentage of compliance was found in this section. The few violations that were discovered have been followed up either by the local panel or by the Enforcement Division of the Philadelphia District Office. They have, in all but a few instances, been corrected. Proprietors of eating and drinking establishments are urged to attend the Bristol meeting. If they desire additional information on the new regulation, they should consult the Price Panel or the price clerk of the local board.

NO PLASTIC WASHERS

It has frequently been said that there will be a period of prosperity after this war as a result of the backlog of purchasing of civilian goods, not obtainable while the conflict is in progress. Now it appears that because of the fanciful prophecies of designers concerning postwar furniture and household appliances there has arisen a fear that the potential customers will not make purchases in the number expected, but will await the imaginary products of the dreaming designers.

If such were the case, there would not be the prosperity predicted, but lagging business in these fields, with resultant unemployment. And the dream world would be farther off than ever for many householders.

Representatives of manufacturing firms and heads of manufacturers' associations recently warned retailers of furniture and home appliances that they are in for some rude shocks if they think that they will have radically new and different products to sell immediately after the war. They said it will be several years instead of several months before new models utilizing radically different materials, designs and production methods developed during the war will be ready for the public.

A reporter recently interviewed a large group of manufacturers' representatives in Chicago, and they made some right smart remarks about what not to expect when peace terms are concluded. John M. Wicht, president of the American Washer and Ironer Association, said the public need not look for plastic washing machines or jet propulsion ironers.

Harry M. Kelley, sales manager of a General Motors Company division, assailed what he termed the "fanciful noodling" of designers who have led the public to expect ranges which can be transformed into cocktail bars and combination clothes and dish washers. Richard N. Greenwood, president of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, says that postwar furniture "will not be radically different. I doubt if we will see much of the visionary plastic types. Wood and steel are still the cheapest and best materials."

In short, the manufacturers' representatives and association heads said that the radios, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, bedding and furniture that will be turned out in the immediate postwar period will be, with few exceptions, the same models that were in production before the war started.

Oil men are spending $300,000,000 of their own money in wildcat developments. Nothing can hold American initiative back.

Some of the President's devout followers are still confused by his willingness to swap Vice Presidents while crossing a stream.

Canadian scientists say everyone will be crazy in 25 years. Quite a number already are acting suspiciously.

set forth in extremely general terms. In some instances, such as States' Rights, no attempt is made to draw a clear line of demarcation. In others the boundaries are sketched in only lightly.

Rivalries in governing branches often may be said to be not merely tolerated by the Constitution, but encouraged. But the fact that in many cases the restrictions are loose and elastic is all the more reason for their careful observance in instances where the limits of authority are clear and unmistakable.

The Constitutional concept is not of an America standing still, resting forever on secure, rockribbed foundations; but of a people and a nation moving forward—often into unforeseen highways and strange intersections.

Congress, the Judiciary and the President may be pictured as three spirited horses harnessed by the Constitution to one wagon. The brake on the wagon is States' Rights. The reins are in the hands of the American people.

For one of the horses to try to kick loose the traces, or bite his team-mate, or jerk away from the reins, may be exciting as a spectacle; but it cannot be said to increase either the speed or safety with which the conveyance travels toward its destination.

Teamwork is the watchword of American government.

Comedy From Bucks County Vehicle of Bucks Players

"George Washington Slept Here," the comedy about the innumerable Bucks County farmhouses in which the Father of Our Country is alleged to have spent a night, will be the Bucks County Playhouse attraction at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel summer theatre during the week of Monday, August 14th. Ernest Truax, who was starred in the original Broadway production, will be on hand to repeat this performance of the timid soul who migrates to the country to live the life of the "gentleman farmer."

The comedy was written by that ace team of converts to the rural Bucks County life, George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, who live in the thick of the area hit by the "back-to-the-country" real estate boom. Their acid and spoofing pens were for the benefit of the over-zealous realty agents who listed among the wonders of their prospective properties the fact that "George Washington Slept Here."

After they wrote the play, the writing pair confessed that they wanted to halt what looked like a movement to rename our first President, Rip Van Winkle Washington. At the same time, they offered to furnish statistics to prove that if Washington slept in every farmhouse which claimed that honor, he could never have won a battle. They even said he would never have been able to leave the bedroom.

DIAMOND BREAKS LOSING STREAK; DEFEATS ALCOA

Game Started As Pitchers' Battle Between Sagolla and Woods

BOTH ALLOWED 6 HITS

Lombardi Led The Losing Team With The Stick

BURLINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Diamond team's losing streak of six straight games was broken last evening as the Bristol team defeated Alcoa, 5-1, in a Suburban League contest. The defeat to the aluminum workers also blasted their second half hopes.

The game started out to be a pitcher's battle between Joe Sagolla, of the Mill Streeters, and Jim Woods, of Alcoa. But Sagolla was backed by errorless support while Woods' mates kicked the ball around apently, six errors being charged against them.

Both boys allowed six hits with Woolvin getting three out of three, including a triple, to lead the batters. Lombardi led the losing team with the stick by getting two singles in four trips to the plate.

As the Badenhausen team scored a 6-1 victory over the Voltz-Texaco nine, it seems almost certain that the Baddies have the second half championship in the bag.

er must have a turnover of 25 percent of his capital investment. The 1940 census showed the investment of farm machinery in Bucks county amounted to $837,000. A good way of computing the investment in machinery a farmer should have is by allowing $15 per acre for equipment. The farmer who goes in for expensive machinery and who does custom work on other farms, according to Mr. Greenawald, often neglects his own farm.

City people moving into the rural communities, it was said, should be welcomed into the farm and other county organizations. Bringing his remarks to a close, Mr. Greenawald, who also conducted a forum later in the evening, said agriculture definitely is not on the decline.

had reached Chartres, but said the American column east of Le Mans are probably on the direct road to Paris which runs through Chartres.

During the night, RAF heavy-weight bombers supported Allied ground troops in France by blasting enemy oil depots at Bordeaux and La Pallice and the rail junction of Dijon. Britain-based night-flying Mosquito bombers at the same time hurled two-ton blockbusters on Berlin.

First reports today from the Italian battlefield turned the spotlight on Polish and Italian troops on the Adriatic flank, the combined Polish and Italian forces launched an attack which drove the Germans from heights between the Misa and Cesano rivers and resulted in the capture of Scappazzano and Monterado.

On the eastern front, Red Army columns in Lithuania continued to smash heavy counter-attacks by German armored and infantry forces battling desperately to prevent Russian invasion of East Prussia. In a three-hour battle west of Kaunas, one Soviet force captured the road junction of Bascinala, 53 miles northeast of the vital east Prussia rail city of Tilsit.

Sportsmen's Briefs

BY JOE ELBERSON

Another big bass . . . entered in the fishing contest sponsored by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association by Francis Cummons on Tuesday of this week. The bass, when weighed in at contest headquarters, Diamond Sporting Goods, 134 Mill street, tipped the scales at three pounds and 14 ounces, and measured 21 inches in length. This tops the next largest entry by six ounces, which was entered by J. R. Burd.

Cummons caught the bass in Otter Creek, just below the Bath street bridge. He was using live bait at the time.

Unusual experience . . . two Bristol anglers, Clarence Angus and Leon Prickett, while fishing at Barnegat Bay one day recently had a rather unusual story when they docked. It seems that one of the men thought he had a bite, but he wasn't sure. He felt a light bumping now and then and remarked on his suspicions to his partner. The second man suggested he pull up his line because he might have a small weakfish on. The line was accordingly pulled in. Both men were very surprised to find just a half of a small weakfish on the hook. The remainder had just been cleanly bitten off. And the remaining half of the fish on the hook was still alive when it was pulled in the boat!

Casting tournament . . . the Wildwood Crest Fishing Club will hold its annual casting tournament at 4:30 p. m., Saturday, on the beach at Wildwood. The tournament can be seen from the boardwalk and an invitation has been extended to the public to view the event, for which there is no charge. The present World's casting record is held by August Livenads, Jr., of the Pacific Rod and Gun Club of San Francisco. His longest cast is 705 feet, 4 inches, made at Monterey, Cal., on August 25, 1940. Eastern records are as follows: average of three casts, Charles M. Vollum, Ocean City, 542 feet, 1 inch; longest cast, Ralph Bowman, Dover Fishing Club, 570 feet. Both of these records were made at Margate City, N. J., on August 27, 1939.

Big carp . . . young Howard Asay had a fishing thrill the other day that will live in his memory long after he has passed his boyhood days. He was out at Silver Lake fishing when a large carp struck his line. Howard hung on and after 30 minutes successfully landed one of the largest carp taken from the lake this season. It weighed an even twelve pounds.

Don't forget, kids . . . there's a fishing contest coming up for all boys and girls under 16 years of age at Silver Lake on Sunday, August 27th. The biggest fish, carp excluded, will win five dollars for the boy or girl who catches him. There are two other prizes, sporting goods items, for second and third place. Contest will run from 11 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. The Fish Committee of the Bristol Fish & Game Association will conduct the contest. Entries will be weighed in at the Lake and prizes awarded there.

The dog training season opens on August 20, according to an announcement today by the Game Commission. However, trainers are urged to select carefully the areas over which their dogs will run so that no destruction of farm crops may result. Especial care should be taken to keep dogs out of soy bean fields. Farmers rightfully object to either dogs or hunters chasing through fields where crop damage will result. Dog owners, as well as all other citizens, should respect the landowner's wishes in all cases and strive to protect his property while afield.

DE RISI ON MOUND HURLS AIR-TIGHT GAME AT TRENTON

Fleetwings Breaks Its Losing Streak by Defeating Eastern Aircraft

FINAL SCORE IS 3 TO 2

Losers Are Held To 2 Hits By The Bristol Moundsman

TRENTON INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE Schedule for Tonight American Steel - Rohm & Haas (On Maple Beach field) Voltz-Texaco - Eastern Aircraft (At Trenton)

With "Mike" DeRisi hurling air-tight ball, the Fleetwings team snapped its losing streak on Wetzel Field, Trenton, last evening to down the Eastern Aircraft nine, 3-2, in a Trenton Industrial League contest.

DeRisi, hooked up with "Ed" Warwick in a hurling match, held the Trenton aircraft workers to two hits. Warwick, formerly of the University of Pennsylvania, gave the Fleetwingers but four hits after he relieved the wild "Tommy" Dougherty.

The Wingers counted the winning tally in the seventh when Cy Bachman led off with a double. He advanced while Lukens went out but scored on a hit to left field by DeRisi. DeRisi took an extra base when Ricatto kicked the ball around but neither Dugan or Dougherty could score him.

Prior to that, the Bristol boys scored in the second when both Bachman and Lukens walked and the former scored on DeRisi's hit off Warwick when the latter came in to relieve Dougherty. In the first, the Arrows scored off Dougherty on three walks, a fielder's choice, and an error by Pulcini. Ludwig, attempting to score another run, was nipped at the plate.

After issuing blanks for the first three innings, DeRisi allowed the Eastern Aircrafters a tally in the fourth when Dearoff walked, stole second and scored on a single by Carman Gagliardi. Then second run was registered the following frame on a hit by Dericco and errors by Lodge and Dugan.

the shifting needs of the war and is expected to be followed by other important changes.

Earlier today, War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt announced that Lieutenant General Breton B. Somervell, commanding general of the Army Service Forces, had said that, while "on the whole" the Army has sufficient supplies, there are about 320 items which are critically short. General Somervell, Mr. McNutt said, reported that one general had to call off 100 air missions because he "didn't have the right type of bombs."

Another general had to abandon 3500 heavy trucks "because he can't keep them up any longer and they have to be replaced" and in another theater of war, General Somervell said, four-ton dump trucks are badly needed.

JAPANESE HIGH COMMAND ADMITS THAT "SOME DAMAGE" IS CAUSED BY U. S. SUPERFORTRESS RAID ON NAGASAKI

Broadcasts Decision of Cabinet to Strengthen Defenses—Some Time Later Admit That Palembang is Hit—Japan's New Cabinet Jittery Over the Increasing Assaults on Home Islands.

By International News Service
Japan's Imperial High Command admitted today that "some damage" had been caused in the United States Superfortress bomber raid on the industrial city of Nagasaki and at the same time Nippon's bomb frightened new cabinet, jittery over the increasing assaults against home islands, decided to prepare a plan for "strengthening home defense."

The admission of damage inflicted by the huge American craft in the raid which hit the Nagasaki area about 1 a. m. Jap time was contained in an official communique reported by the Domei agency and recorded by the FCC.

Radio Tokyo broadcast the decision of the cabinet to strengthen defenses after studying reports on the B-29 raid, the FCC said.

Not until some time later did the Japs acknowledge that Palembang, on the island of Sumatra, had been hit by another wing of the U. S. 20th Air Force.

"Just one oil tank was set afire," Domei asserted.

No details were given in the first Tokyo announcement heard by Reuters.

Announcement of the new attack came less than 24 hours after big United States Superfortress bombers had blasted the vital industrial center of Nagasaki on Kyushu island.

Japan's bomb frightened new cabinet, jittery over the increasing American assaults on the Nipponese home islands, decided meanwhile to prepare a plan for "strengthening home defense."

Liberators Execute 3 Successive Night Assaults On "Japs"

"YANKS" NEAR PARIS

By International News Service
The Japanese cabinet, alarmed over the results of new American air blows against Japan's stolen empire, including an assault by B-29 Superfortresses on industrial Nagasaki in the Japanese homeland, moved nervously today to "strengthen home defense."

The cabinet's sudden decision came after B-29's not only struck a powerful blow at Nagasaki but also made a devastating strike at Palembang on the island of Sumatra, while B-24 Liberator bombers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command executed three successive night assaults on Davano in the Philippines, heralding the opening phase of MacArthur's triumphant return to Manila.

These powerful air assaults against the Japanese seemed to accentuate the new Pacific strategy mapped at the newly disclosed conference between President Roosevelt and his military leaders in the Pacific war zone at Honolulu.

Gen. MacArthur's communique announcing the beginning of the pre-invasion blockade of the Philippines also revealed that American troops in British New Guinea have crushed the last enemy resistance by trapping Japanese forces in the Drimliver River area, and another communique from Pearl Harbor revealed the end of enemy resistance on the reconquered island of Guam, completing the American investment of the Marianas group.

In France, American spearheads driving toward Paris were reported at Chartres, only 43 miles from the capital, as other American units in Brittany intensified their siege of the port and naval base at Brest.

An official spokesman at Allied headquarters said there was no confirmation as yet that the Yanks

STABILITY OR MOBILITY

(Doylestown Intelligencer, August 11th)

Many people assume the Constitution to contain elements which the writers had no thought of including.

They expect to find in it a series of fixed regulations by which a sharply defined form of government is established, and under which every public official, every branch of government and every individual ought to be able to tell exactly what he can or cannot do.

Because there are not always such definite boundaries, because differences of opinion on such a fundamental question as States' Rights led to a Civil War, such people conclude that the Constitution is defective in one of its main purposes.

The Constitution is not a rule-book. Quite the contrary, it is a statement of principles looking to the establishment of a fluid, changing form of government, adaptable alike to foreseen and unexpected needs, but so constructed that each element in it is both supported and limited by the other elements.

The difference between mere orders, and principles of conduct, may be illustrated by the story of a parent who had left his children with an apparently exhaustive list of instructions about the things they must and must not do.

When he returned he was appalled to discover all his hopefuls up a maple tree, into the branches of which they had woven a tangle of clothesline.

At the family conference which followed, sober young faces were turned to him in wide-eyed innocence, and he was told reproachfully: "Why, Daddy, you never told us not to make a rope elevator in the maple tree."

The plea, he it said, was meekly accepted by the parent, on whom a light dawned. Thereafter the family rules ceased to be mere "do's" and "don'ts," and became instead more generalized instructions covering such matters as the duty of the older to protect the younger, the obligation to respect property rights, and the need for avoiding all experiments—however attractive—which obviously risked life and limb.

The first code of rules was at the mercy both of ingenuity and of the unforeseeable. The second compilation was of more enduring stuff. The principles embodied in it were flexible even though unchanging; adaptable to the future as well as to the present.

Likewise the Constitution is dynamic, not static. It does not attempt to lay down a legal program immutable as the law of the Medes and the Persians, but a statement of American principles of government under which the answer to specific problems is left largely to the working out of the people themselves and of various officials and branches of government.

Most of the flat orders of the Constitution are prohibitions, and usually against specific acts. These "shall nots" in the main are direct protections to the rights of the people.

The powers of governing agencies and officials are

CITES AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION ACTIVITY

County Farm Agent Tells Lions Club Members of the Movement

BUCKS RANKS HIGH

WARRINGTON, Aug. 11—The activities in connection with agricultural extension were brought before members of Warrington Lions Club by Bucks Co. farm agent, William F. Greenawalt, of Doylestown, this week.

Mr. Greenawalt informed that the agricultural extension movement was started in Congress in 1862, and a short time later Pennsylvania State College designated to carry on this work in this state.

It was not until 1912 that money was appropriated for the conducting of experiments of interest to the farmers. Sixty-six of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania have county agents, and the only county having no county agent is Fulton.

Bucks county, Mr. Greenawalt told the club, ranks fourth in the State in the production of agricultural products, and 33rd in the United States. The leading farm activities in Bucks county include dairying, poultry raising and the growing of vegetables.

This county rates 16th in the nation for poultry production, and the income of all farm products in the county annually amounts to $9,500,000.

Some years ago, said Mr. Greenawalt, two-thirds of the farms in the county were operated by tenants, but now two-thirds of them are operated by the owners themselves. During the past year, according to Mr. Greenawalt, nine per cent of the farms in the county changed ownership.

City dwellers purchasing farms have done a good job, said Mr. Greenawalt. They usually come to the farms and are satisfied to meet expenses, but a number of them are more than meeting expenses.

In order to be a successful farmer, said Mr. Greenawalt, the farmer

Germans Predict Allied Capture of Paris May Be Today

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force—German broadcasts frankly predicted Allied capture of Paris as a likely eventuality today while unconfirmed reports at Allied Headquarters placed American spearheads at Chartres, famous old Cathedral city on the fringe of the French capital's inner defense belt.

Although official spokesmen had no substantiation of reports the Americans had reached or taken Chartres, it was obvious the United States advance was still rolling in high gear, and at the same time the battle for Brest reached its climax.

The frankest admission that Paris is likely to fall, perhaps within an unexpectedly short time, came from Robert De Beauplan, commentator on the Nazi-controlled Paris radio.

"The war is getting nearer to Paris," he said. The Allies are sweeping forward toward the capital and they may capture it. It cannot be denied that the fall of the city would be a tremendous event, but it would not mean that the war was over.

"Fighting would continue and every inch of ground would still be bitterly contested. For the Allies Paris presents merely strategic advances."

Chartres itself lies only 43 miles from Paris.

Dr. J. Fred Wagner spoke to his fellow members of the Rotary Club when they met at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon on the topic, "Raising and Breeding of Horses."

"This has always been a most interesting subject to me," Dr. Wagner said. "From my early life on a farm I have always been interested in horses and their training."

"Race track horses have pedigrees and are very highly trained. The breeding of these horses is a very important phase of their development. They are trained just as human athletes. When they are born they are given every care and training. The famous race horse 'Man-o-War' came from an ordinary horse but good training made this horse famous."

"When a race horse passes January 1st of the coming year he is called a 'yearling,'" Dr. Wagner said.

Following the talk, which was very thoroughly enjoyed by members, Dr. Wagner answered many questions for the group.

Announcement was made that the speaker for the meeting next week will be T. D. Slattery, vice-president and general manager of the Associated British and Irish Railways, Inc. Slattery has a wide reputation for his excellent talks.

WILL FAMILIARIZE PROPRIETORS WITH THE RATION RULES

Price Panel Invites Owners of Eating and Drinking Places to Meeting

AT BRISTOL TONIGHT

First Hand Information Will Be Available at That Time

The Price Panel of the local War Price and Rationing Board has mailed invitations to a trade meeting to the proprietors of all eating and drinking establishments in the ration area in the lower half of Bucks county, south of Doylestown. The meeting is to be held in the Bristol Municipal building at eight p. m. this evening.

This meeting is for the purpose of familiarizing those in the restaurant business with their new regulation which became effective August 1. Representatives from the local War Price and Rationing Board will attend so that first hand information will be available at the Board office for those proprietors unable to attend.

A section of the new regulation requires the ceiling prices on 40 basic items of food served in an establishment to be posted in a conspicuous place. Heretofore, the ceiling prices were kept on file, but did not have to be displayed. The Office of Price Administration and the District Restaurant Council hope, by this arrangement, to attain a greater degree of compliance on the part of the restaurant proprietors and to bring more forcefully to the attention of the public the fact that they should be aware of ceiling prices when they are patronizing their favorite eating place as well as when they are shopping in stores.

The Price Panel will check the prices posted in each establishment against those which have been on file in the board office for more than a year.

In recent checks which the panel members and their volunteers have made a high percentage of compliance was found in this section. The few violations that were discovered have been followed up either by the local panel or by the Enforcement Division of the Philadelphia District Office. They have, in all but a few instances, been corrected.

Proprietors of eating and drinking establishments are urged to attend the Bristol meeting. If they desire additional information on the new regulation, they should consult the Price Panel or the price clerk of the local board.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

Recent graduation ceremonies at the Naval Training School (Diesel) on the Iowa State College campus, Ames, Iowa, saw Bluejacket Harry W. Pittman, Bristol, Pa., receive recognition as eligible to qualify for the petty officer rate of motor machinist's mate third class.

Selection to attend the specialty school is based on the results of recruit training aptitude test scores. The course of study includes the use, operation and maintenance of Diesel engines. A theoretical phase is concerned with Diesel engine theory, electrical fundamentals and machine shop operation.

The graduate is now awaiting further duty orders to sea or to some shore station.

Comedy From Bucks County Vehicle of Bucks Players

"George Washington Slept Here," the comedy about the innumerable Bucks County farmhouses in which the Father of Our Country is alleged to have spent a night, will be the Bucks County Playhouse attraction at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel summer theatre during the week of Monday, August 14th. Ernest Truax, who was starred in the original Broadway production, will be on hand to repeat this performance of the timid soul who migrates to the country to live the life of the "gentleman farmer."

The comedy was written by that ace team of converts to the rural Bucks County life, George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, who live in the thick of the area hit by the "back-to-the-country" real estate boom. Their acid and spoofing pens were for the benefit of the over-zealous realty agents who listed among the wonders of their prospective properties the fact that "George Washington Slept Here." After they wrote the play, the writing pair confessed that they wanted to halt what looked like a movement to rename our first President, Rip Van Winkle Washington. At the same time, they offered to furnish statistics to prove that if Washington slept in every farmhouse which claimed that honor, he could never have won a battle. They even said he would never have been able to leave the bedroom.

DIAMOND BREAKS LOSING STREAK; DEFEATS ALCOA

Game Started As Pitchers' Battle Between Sagolla and Woods

BOTH ALLOWED 6 HITS

Lombardi Led The Losing Team With The Stick

BURLINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Diamond team's losing streak of six straight games was broken last evening as the Bristol team defeated Alcoa, 5-1, in a Suburban League contest. The defeat to the aluminum workers also blasted their second half hopes.

The game started out to be a pitcher's battle between Joe Sagolla of the Mill Streeters, and Jim Woods, of Alcoa. But Sagolla was backed by errorless support while Woods' mates kicked the ball around aptly, six errors being charged against them.

Both boys allowed six hits with Woolvin getting three out of three, including a triple, to lead the batters. Lombardi led the losing team with the stick by getting two singles in four trips to the plate.

As the Badenhausen team scored a 4-1 victory over the Voltz-Texaco line, it seems almost certain that the Baddies have the second half championship in the bag.

Cites Agricultural Extension Activity

er must have a turnover of 25 per cent of his capital investment. The 1940 census showed the investment of farm machinery in Bucks county amounted to $837,000. A good way of computing the investment in machinery a farmer should have by allowing $15 per acre for equipment. The farmer who goes in for expensive machinery and who does custom work on other farms, according to Mr. Greenwald, often neglects his own farm. City people moving into the rural communities, it was said, should be welcomed into the farm and other county organizations. Bringing his remarks to a close, Mr. Greenwald, who also conducted a forum later in the evening, said agriculture definitely is not on the decline.

Allied Forces Show Gains On All Fronts

had reached Chartres, but said the American column east of Le Mans are probably on the direct road to Paris which runs through Chartres. During the night, RAF heavy-weight bombers supported Allied ground troops in France by blasting enemy oil depots at Bordeaux and La Pallice and the rail junction of Dijon. Britain-based night-flying Mosquito bombers at the same time hurled two-ton blockbusters on Berlin.

First reports today from the Italian battlefield turned the spotlight on Polish and Italian troops on the Adriatic flank, the combined Polish and Italian forces launched an attack which drove the Germans from heights between the Misa and Cesano rivers and resulted in the capture of Scappazzano and Monterado.

On the eastern front, Red Army columns in Lithuania continued to smash heavy counter-attacks by German armored and infantry forces battling desperately to prevent Russian invasion of East Prussia. In a three-hour battle west of Kaunas, one Soviet force captured the road junction of East Prussia, 53 miles northeast of the vital east Prussia rail city of Tilsit.

Another big bass . . . entered in the fishing contest sponsored by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association by Francis Commons on Tuesday of this week. The bass, when weighed in at contest headquarters, Diamond Sporting Goods, 134 Mill street, tipped the scales at three pounds and 14 ounces, and measured 21 inches in length. This tops the next largest entry by six ounces, which was entered by J. R. Burd.

Commons caught the bass in Otter Creek, just below the Bath street bridge. He was using live bait at the time.

Unusual experience . . . two Bristol anglers, Clarence Angus and Leon Prickett, while fishing at Barnegat Bay one day recently had a rather unusual story when they docked. It seems that one of the men thought he had a bite, but he wasn't sure. He felt a light bumping now and then and remarked on his suspicions to his partner. The second man suggested he pull up his line because he might have a small weakfish on. The line was accordingly pulled in. Both men were very surprised to find just half of a small weakfish on the hook. The remainder had just been cleanly bitten off. And the remaining half of the fish on the hook was still alive when it was pulled in the boat!

Casting tournament . . . the Wildwood Crest Fishing Club will hold its annual casting tournament at 4:30 p. m., Saturday, on the beach at Wildwood. The tournament can be seen from the boardwalk and an invitation has been extended to the public to view the event, for which there is no charge.

The present World's casting record is held by August Livenals, Jr., of the Pacific Rod and Gun Club of San Francisco. His longest cast is 705 feet, 4 inches, made at Monterey, Cal., on August 25, 1940. Eastern records are as follows: average of three casts, Charles M. Vollum, Ocean City, 542 feet, 1 inch; longest cast, Ralph Bowman, Dover Fishing Club, 570 feet. Both of these records were made at Margate City, N. J., on August 27, 1939.

Big carp . . . young Howard Asay had a fishing thrill the other day that will live in his memory long after he has passed his boyhood days. He was out at Silver Lake fishing when a large carp struck his line. Howard hung on and after 30 minutes successfully landed one of the largest carp taken from the lake this season. It weighed an even twelve pounds.

Don't forget, kids . . . there's a fishing contest coming up for all boys and girls under 16 years of age at Silver Lake on Sunday, August 27th. The biggest fish, carp excluded, will win five dollars for the boy or girl who catches him. There are two other prizes, sporting goods items, for second and third place. Contest will run from 11 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. The Fish Committee of the Bristol Fish & Game Association will conduct the contest. Entries will be weighed in at the Lake and prizes awarded there.

The dog training season opens on August 20, according to an announcement today by the Game Commission. However, trainers are urged to select carefully the areas over which their dogs will run so that no destruction of farm crops may result. Especial care should be taken to keep dogs out of soy bean fields. Farmers rightfully object to either dogs or hunters chasing through fields where crop damage will result. Dog owners, as well as all other citizens, should respect the landowner's wishes in all cases and strive to protect his property while afield.

DE RISI ON MOUND HURLS AIR-TIGHT GAME AT TRENTON

Fleetwings Breaks Its Losing Streak by Defeating Eastern Aircraft

FINAL SCORE IS 3 TO 2

Losers Are Held To 2 Hits By The Bristol Moundsman

With "Mike" DeRisi hurling air-tight ball, the Fleetwings team snapped its losing streak on Wetzel Field, Trenton, last evening to down the Eastern Aircraft nine, 3-2, in a Trenton Industrial League contest.

DeRisi, hooked up with "Ed" Warwick in a hurling match, held the Trenton aircraft workers to two hits. Warwick, formerly of the University of Pennsylvania, gave the Fleetwings but four hits after he relieved the wild "Tommy" Dougherty.

The Wingers counted the winning tally in the seventh when Cy Bachman led off with a double. He advanced while Lukens went out but scored on a hit to left field by DeRisi. DeRisi took an extra base when Ricatto kicked the ball around but neither Dugan or Dougherty could score him.

Prior to that, the Bristol boys scored in the second when both Bachman and Lukens walked and the former scored on DeRisi's hit off Warwick when the latter came in to relieve Dougherty. In the first, the Arrows scored off Dougherty on three walks, a fielder's choice, and an error by Pulcini. Ludwig, attempting to score another run, was nipped at the plate.

After issuing blanks for the first three innings, DeRisi allowed the Eastern Aircrafters a tally in the fourth when Dearoff walked, stole second and scored on a single by Carman Gagliardi. Then second run was registered the following frame on a hit by Dericco and errors by Lodge and Dugan.

Army Plans Drastic Cut In Airplane Production

the shifting needs of the war and is expected to be followed by other important changes.

Earlier today, War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt announced that Lieutenant General Breton B. Somervell, commanding general of the Army Service Forces, had said that, while "on the whole" the Army has sufficient supplies, there are about 320 items which are critically short.

General Somervell, Mr. McNutt said, reported that one general had to call off 100 air missions because he "didn't have the right type of bombs."

Another general had to abandon 3500 heavy trucks "because he can't keep them up any longer and they have to be replaced" and in another theater of war, General Somervell said, four-ton dump trucks are badly needed.
